DOWCO GUARDIAN ATV COVERS

Dowco's new Guardian ATV Covers can protect your wheeler like it's a Cadillac with a built-in pocket for an alarm system. Sold separately, the alarm emits a 130 dB warning if criminal hands try to remove the cover. It installs in minutes and needs no special wiring. Before installing the cover, the alarm is slipped into one of two pockets, and a tether attaches to a fixed part on the ATV or UTV. Covers range between $60 and $120, the alarm is $20.

KINEDYNE STEADYMATE CINCHTITE TIE-DOWN

Between endless knots, rusted ratchets and fraying cords, tie-down straps can be a hassle. Kinedyne's heavy-duty tie-downs are sorted by holding capacity (2,500 to 5,000 lbs.), and available with two different tensioning devices. Most models have rust proof hardware and built-in soft loops that allow you to tie your toys down without scratching any components. Price is $30 to $38.

BMP FULL VELOCITY SPORTSMAN EXHAUST

Bikeman Performance's Full Velocity exhaust systems for the Polaris Sportsman use a megaphone-style header for increased exhaust flow to the muffler. With a fully baffled, internal chamber design, BMP says its muffler has a quiet idle and a throatier sound with revs, with a claimed 4 to 6 HP gain. An EFI control box or jetting changes, for carbureted models, is required. Prices range from $400 to $500.
